Andrew Greer Hosting an Angel Band Christmas to Help End Poverty
All Ticket Sales for the Nov. 30th Holiday Concert Benefit Food for the Hungry Nicaragua

PHOENIX (Nov. 3, 2015) – Multiple Dove Award-nominated singer-songwriter Andrew Greer will host and headline An Angel Band Christmas at The Franklin Theatre in Franklin, Tenn. on Monday, Nov. 30 to benefit Food for the Hungry Nicaragua. Every ticket sold to the holiday concert will help this nation overcome poverty.

“For three years, I have been honored to work alongside my friends at Food for the Hungry as they diligently work to break the cycle of poverty in families and communities in Latin America,” said Greer. “As I have worked alongside my Nicaraguan friends, my mind and heart have been opened even wider to the kingdom of God at work here on earth. And so my generously-talented friends and I are glad benefit our neighbors in Nicaragua through this evening of holiday songs and stories.”

An Angel Band Christmas will begin at 7:30 p.m. with guests enjoying a unique blend of acoustic stylings from Greer and a variety of other artists, including 2015 Dove Award winner Cindy Morgan, 14-time Grammy Award winner Ron Block, the legendary McCrary Sisters and best-selling Women of Faith author and speaker Patsy Clairmont.

“It is heartwarming, especially as we enter the Christmas season, to know that more families in Nicaragua will be receiving reliable water supplies, basic health education and community building skills due to the generosity of these charitable musicians,” said Food for the Hungry President and CEO Gary Edmonds. “Music is such a wonderful medium that brings so many together and this concert is another example of how we are working toward ending poverty together.”

Admission to the concert varies from $30 to $60. Cabaret seats, sold for $60 each, include an exclusive pre-show VIP Reception with an acoustic performance, meet-and-greet and a photo opportunity with all artists, as well as an autographed An Angel Band Christmas poster from the event.
