Food for the Hungry Expanding World Headquarters in Arizona Phoenix-based Nonprofit Increasing Services, Volunteer Opportunities on New Campus

PHOENIX– Phoenix-based, international nonprofit Food for the Hungry (FH) is growing their world headquarters in Arizona with the purchase of the Phoenix Art Building located at 4125 North 14th Street in midtown Phoenix. With employees in more than 20 countries worldwide, as well as offices in Nashville, Tennessee and Washington, D.C., Food for the Hungry is working to end extreme poverty overseas. The new location will be designed to help accommodate a growing staff which will increase to 150 local employees and 3,000 global employees in 2018. Additionally, a dedicated space for volunteer projects will allow Arizonans to help make an impact worldwide.

“This is a very exciting announcement for Food for the Hungry as we will now be able to house all of our headquarters employees in one building as opposed to the three that we currently occupy, which means we will be able to spend more time making a positive impact across the world,” said Food for the Hungry President/CEO Gary Edmonds. “Our growth is good for Arizona, as well as around the globe, as we will now have space for more employees and volunteers to help make a difference for refugees fleeing wars to those suffering from extreme poverty in developing countries. In 2018, we will be looking to expand our mission in more countries and this new location will allow us to achieve these goals.”

Since their original move from California to the Valley of the Sun in 1973, this new 72,000 square foot campus will be the third location in the Phoenix-area for FH. The current FH location at 1224 East Washington in downtown Phoenix will be for sale in 2018. A grand opening for the new facility is expected in late summer 2018.
